
The Territory of the Kadanzer Weyr

THE KADANZER WEYR: Kadanzer Weyr is now located on the long-abandoned site of the old Southern Weyr. (See the Timeline for the reason that site was vacant.) The former site of the Weyr is located in the mountains of the Western Barrier Range; particularly, the mountain just south of the eastern loop of Drake's Lake as seen in The Atlas of Pern. Our territory extends from the Rubicon River and the Sea of Azov in the east, to the westernmost coast of Izmir Hold; and from the Barrier range in the south to the northernmost tip of Windsong Hold. On the map below, major holds and crafthalls in Kadanzer territory have links to a more detailed description of those Holds and Halls.

(map adapted from The Atlas of Pern by Lynne Brigant; hold and hall links added by Sue Callaway)

THE CLIMATE: Kadanzer Weyr is now in the tropics; summers are hot, and winters are still warm, though rainy. For those of you still writing stories backdated to before the move, the old Weyr was very close to the Snowy Waste of the Southern Continent, and did not have the tropical weather so well known, and expected, of the Southern Continent. In fact, the old Weyr commonly had bitterly cold, long winters and only mildly warm summers. While it was a wonderful area to be during the summer, during the winter many weyrfolk would hitch rides north whenever a dragonpair headed that way for some time in the sun and warmth.